How to Live Justly and Soulfully in a Deeply Divided World

Sometimes we travel far to come home.

I grew up in West Texas where the land was flat and the winds blew. Thirty years later, Fargo became home for my young family. Expecting a frozen wilderness as we settled in to our new home during a January blizzard, I discovered instead the warmth and wisdom held within the Presentation Prayer Center. Nurtured for seven years within Presentation charism, I came home to a depth of Spirit and an understanding of the needs of the wide world around me.

The world has changed since then. We are all older and life on a global level is more complex. Yet the Spirit's fire burns brightly, in our hearts as in Nano's lantern, illuminating the next steps for each of us as we strive to live justly and soulfully in our deeply divided world.

Big Topics at Midnight: A Texas Girl Wakes Up to Race, Class, Gender and Herself emerged as I tried to make sense of the spiritual pilgrimage of living from the heart today and every day. I am returning to Fargo to explore this topic at the October 2013 Presentation Prayer Center Luncheon.
